About Tim

Tim is a future-shaping practitioner and unique technology and policy operator bridging industry gaps. His systems expertise in technology, economics, and infrastructure policy ignites audiences. As a key advisor to Google X, he held the rare distinction of commercializing two moonshots, including Waymo, shaping the future in real time. Formerly San Francisco's Chief Innovation Officer, Tim now guides global companies and governments to see, understand, and build the future through his advisory firm. His captivating speeches and workshops turn complex systems into relatable, entertaining, and high-energy content that connects deeply with senior leaders, leaving them with tangible actions and memorable experiences.
